Mr. Cleveland-Silver. As "all the world loves a lover." so all the world loves a statesman who has "the courage of his convictions." Mr. CLEVE LAND is such a statesman. He has, not only on one occasion but on a number of them, dared to defy the public sentiment of his own party if not of the whole country. When he began the movement in favor of the expunging resolution, Thomas H. Benzon said to the United States Senate, "Solitary and alone I set this ball in motion." His courage in that instance was not greater than that shown by Mr. CLEVE-LAND in coming out boldly, as he did in bill to provide for the free coinage of silver. Think of it. The Farmers' Alliances alone-all understood to be in favor of the free coinage of silver-contain hundreds of thousands of voters. Even in Virginia there are more than forty thousand men enrolled in that organization. So all over the Northwest there are thousands and bundreds of thousands of advocates of the policy of placing silver and gold upon an equal footing in the mints of the United States, whilst the Pacific States and the Rocky Mountain States proper, are almost unanimously on the same side. "

Ignoring these facts-or, perhaps, treating them as he thought they ought to be treated-Mr. CLEVELAND, though an aspirant to the nomination of the next Demo eratic National Convention for the presidency of the United States, comes out and declares that in his opinion "the greatest peril would be invited by the adoption of the scheme embraced in the measure now pending in Congress for the unlimited coinage of silver at our mints," He adds, too, by way of argument, that "if w have developed an unexpected capacity for the assimilation of a largely. increased volume of this currency and even if we have demonstrated the usefulness of such increase, other conditions fall far short of insuring us against disaster if in the present situation we enter upon the dangers of free, unlimited, and independent silver coinage. For a man who "talks out in meeting" in that style it is a great concession to admit that the gold-bugs were wrong twelve years ago when they used the same arguments against the BLAND bill which they now use against the bill to provide for the free coinage of silver. It is another concession on his part when he objects to "independent silver coinage"-that is, coinage by the United States without the cooperation of the commercial nations of the

We are glad that Mr. CLEVELAND has defined his position so clearly. He did nothing more, in doing so, than a regard for his duty as a good citizen might have prompted him to do. If the people of the United States are following false lights and in danger of falling into a financial bog those statesmen who cannot be misled by such lights but see with unbeclouded vision that there is a bog and know how to escape its perils, are in duty bound to sound the alarum-bells and warn their fellow-citizens in time to save the country from financial ruin.

But will Mr. CLEVELAND's letter silence the advocates of the free coinage of silver? Of course not. He wrote a somewhat similar letter several years ago. was just as decidedly on the side of the monometallists as is the one now under consideration. But it did not, so far as we know, convert a single Democrat from the error of his ways. Probably or possibly his last letter may have the effect of taking the silver question from among the ques-tions in controversy between the two parties. But if it ceases to be a party question it will at once become a sectional question, and will thus compel the national conven-tions of both parties in 1892 to be exceedingly careful in choosing their nominees for President of the United States.

It is not impossible that Mr. CLEVELAND wrote his last letter to strengthen the hands of the Democratic monometallists in the present Congress, of whom there are said to be three in the Senate and a dozen or so in the House of Representa-tives. If it has that effect, as we do not think it will have, the final result will be that the silver question will next year be the one issue as between the two parties.

We need not here set forth our own creed upon the silver question. It is in brief that we are willing to try a dangerous experiment rather than have our currency ruined by an experiment ten times more dangerous. We see nothing new nowadays on this subject. We are acquainted with all the current arguments, but for all that we uniliar as a garter."

Miles the Indian-Hunter.

General Mizzs has shown both a bad heart and a bad judgment in speaking coarsely of Mrs. Jerrenson Davis. The widow of the Confederate President stated what we believe to be a fact when she charged him with cruelty to Mr. DAVIS while Mr. Davis was his prisoner. General Miles should have either disproved the accusation or kept silent.

"The woman," as he calls Mrs. Davis, will be believed in preference to him. Dr. Minniognone, who was Mr. Davis's pastor at Richmond and at Fortress Mon-roe, in his memorial address, made here upon the occasion of Mr. Davis's death, nfirmed the statements of cruelties practiced upon the captive. The Doctor dwelt upon this topic but a moment; he used only a few sentences in speaking of it, but, gen-

Grand Lodge, No. 5, Closed at Baltimore.

After two long sessions on Wednesday the business of the twenty-second biennial session of District Grand Lodge, No. 5, Independent Order of Brai Brith, was concluded, and the lodge adjourned to meet in 1893 in Macoa, Ga. The day's work related entirely to the internal affairs of the order. Nearly the whole morning and part of the afternoon was taken up in the committee on the endowment fund. The special feature advocated the optional endowment system for new members—that is, to join the order and pay the regular dues without being compelled to subscribe to the endowment or widows and orphan's benefit feature. Thus they would simply be interested in the benevolent work of the order, and would not share in its insurance benefits. This being a change in the laws of the order, it required a two-thirds vote to carry it through, and, failing in this, it was at first lost, but was after-ward reconsidered and carried. The committee also proposed that the assessment for the endowment fund be increased from operation of the commercial nations of the earth. He thus admits by necessary implication that he would not object to the opening of our mints to free coinage if England, France, and Germany would join us in that measure.

ward reconsidered and carried. The committee also proposed that the assessment for the endowment fund be increased from $15 to $15 to $15, claiming that the present tax of $15 was too small, and would in a comparatively short time result in a deficit. This was strongly advocated by a small This was strongly advocated by a small majority of the delegates, and as strongly opposed by the remainder. Failing to secure a two-thirds majority it was lost, and although reconsidered was lost again. The two resolutions relating to the Russian Jews in America, the first endorsing the Jewish Altions relating to the Russian Jews in America, the first endorsing the Jewish Alilaace in its efforts to have immigrants settle on the farming lands, instead of colonizing in the cities, and the second, favoring the establishment of B'nai B'rith lodges among them, were reported favorably from the committee to which they had been referred and were adopted. The Grand Lodge appropriated $100 for the work of the alliance, and appointed a committee consisting of President Henry King, Jr., S. L. Auerbach, Aaron Haas, and Elias Rosenbaum, Jr., to represent it at the alliance convention to be held next Sunday in Philadelphia. The Committee on Finance reported in favor of continuing the $1 per capita tax on the members of the order for the support of the Orphans' Home in Atlanta, Ga. This will result in the raising of $4,000. The expenses of the asylum are $10,000 per annum, and the remaining $9,000 is raised by other means in Georgia.

NORFOLK AND WESTERN PLANS.

Reported to Be Preparing to Buy Baltimore's Interest in Western Maryland.

According to a special dispatch from Baltimore to the New York Tribune the Norfolk and Western Railroad Company is about to make an offer to the city of Baltimore for its stock in the Western Maryland railroad, which will probably be accepted. This is the first move in a project which it is believed will combine several roads, making a continuous system from Bristol, Tenn., to northern cities ria the Baltimore and Ohio and the Reading roads. The Pennsylvania has also been trying to get possession of the Western Maryland since the latter formed a traffic agreement with the Baltimore and Ohio and the Belt-Line Tunnel Company. The Western Maryland now uses the Fennsylvania railroad stations and the tunnel under this city, paying $80,000 ayear trackage charges. To avoid this heavy drain the Western Maryland will construct an elevated road over the bed of Jones Falls, a stream flowing through the city to tidewater at the eastern end of the city. This new movesmeans war between the Pennsylvania and the Western Maryland. more's Interest in Western Maryland.

A DECLARATION OF WAR. A prominent official of the Pennsylvania says that when the Western Maryland begins the construction of its proposed lines the act will be construct as a declaration of war, and the Baltimore and Potomac, the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore, and the Northern Central railroad companies will throw as many obstructions as possible in the way. Should this course not prove successful in choking off the building of the Western Maryland's new line, they will, upon the completion of the latter, lower their rates to a figure at which the Western Maryland could not do business.

[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.] Perensauno, Va., February 12.-There was a complicated case before the Mayor this morning in which a number of the better class of our colored people were the uplainants and two strangers were the defendants. Some weeks ago J. C. Bowles, a white man, and J. C. Christopher (colored), came to this city in company, Bowles representing himself to be the business manager and Christopher an agent of manager and Christopher an agent of the Keystone Savings, Loan and Invest-ment Association of New York. They went to work among the colored people, secured stock, and organized and estab-lished a branch association here. A good many colored people, attracted by the pleasant representations made to them, took stock and paid in their money. Sub-sequently Mr. Bowles was called away and Christopher was left here in charge of the business.

The Dispatch correspondence with reference to "the belled buzzard" in one of the lower counties this week recalls the fact that there are quite a number of these "fowls of the air" that innabulating around and about. I knew a couple of young men to put small steel-traps at a carcass and thus capture a number of buzzards to whose necks they attached small bells and then loosed them to make "music in the air." Thus, if buzzards be migratory as claimed by some, there were a sufficient number of them to furnish each district in the State with one.
